ity, the fund's with UNCF in the

JAYCEES HONOR EDWARD BUTLER

T-P 1-25-69

Award Given for Service to Community

The New Orleans Jaycees' annual distinguished service award was presented at the Fontainebleau Motor Hotel to Edward Scannell Butler.

Harold D. Brennend, manager of the Chevron Oil Co., presented the award to Butler, which was for outstanding service to the community. The award is made on the basis of the recipient's contribution to community welfare, participation in community activities, evidence of personal or business progress, indications of leadership ability and cooperation with civic organizations.

Butler is at present executive vice-president of the Information Council of the Americas (INCA) and is also president of Scannell Associates, public affairs consultants for the Schick Safety Razor Co.

According to the Jaycees, his "continued work with INCA and his associations with prominent national and international personalities have brought favorable and lasting impressions and contributions to this community."

EDWARD SCANNELL BUTLER

Butler is also a member of the Planning and Development Committee of the Institute for American Strategy and has been nominated to the board of directors of Young Americans for Freedom. He is the editor of a national magazine, the Westwood Village Square.